After Mrs. Barnaby died he retained two hayers to take charge of the case, but claimed he did so upon the instruc-tions of the dead woman's daughter. He then told the oft told tale about the dead woman being dissatisfied with the doctor as a business man, and changing the will so as to leave him $15,000, instead of $50,000.

Duckworth Club to Dishaud.

CINCINATI, Dec. 16.—It is said that the Duckworth Club, the famous Democratic organization of this city, will disband. On account of the dissentions among the members growing out of Gov. Campbell's candidacy in the last election, an attempt will be made to retire the present hoard of Directors. Falling in this, the matter will ors. Failing to this, the matter will be taken to court in the form of a petition setting forth that the club is insolvent, and that it will be to the best interests of the stockholders to have the organization wiped out of existence.

New York, Dec. 16.-The absolute lentification of Mr. and Mrs. Noccross the head of the dynamite thrower as of their son would have cleared up the mystery that has enshroused this mes remarkable case had it not been for the appearance yesterday of a new and apparently reliable witness whose testimony goes far to u past the alleged

It will be remembered that the office adjoining that of Norcross was occupied by W. T. White, a designer of machinery and a promoter of railroad enter-prises with whom Norcross was on terms of the closest intimacy. In fact Mr. White was the only really intimate friend that Norcross is known to have had, and he has been the only per son who knew Norcross who from the first has resolutely refused to believe that he was the dynamiter.

Mr. White came on from Boston yes torday and was not by a reporter on his

"I am willing to stake my reputation and wager every delice I have that the meal is not that of Heary I. Noverowall dees not resemble him in any partientar, with the possible exception of the nose and even in that there is a marked difference about the nostrils. The beard is not that of Noverows, that I'll swear to. He and I began to grow our beards on the same day, toward the rul of last August, and we used to compare their growth and joke each other. I'll beard was black like mine, but the beard on this head is of a distinctly readish color. The hair too is not that of Noveross, i'lls was very fine, whereas this is exceedingly coarse.

"Then again, Noveross had a conspicuously long thin, while the chin of that head is decidedly short. The simps of the head and contour of the forehead are slao very different. But laying all these descrepancies aside, there is one point alone that stamps the head as other than Noveross's. I mean the ears, which you will notice are remarkably small and delicate and fit closely against the head. Now Noveross's ears were simply inmense and stuck out extraight White exclaimed:

Mr. White does not scruple to say that Henry L. Norcross is alive and well and has simply dropped out of sight for a white for reasons known best to himself, and possibly to his relatives. He says that Henry was not the austere and puritanteally modest young man that his parents have represented him to be.

It was observed that when confronted with the heat Mrs. Novemes showed very little smotion and did not healtste to remove the doth from the face herself. In spite of the disfigured condition of the heat the recognition that followed was instantaneous, not a moniest being devoted to an examination of the face.

Mr. and Mrs. Novemes have made long affidavits describing their reasons for believing the heat to be that of their son. The positiveness of White's statement, however, has called attention anew to the dead dynamiter.
